Authorities Urged To Pick Up Drivers' Licenses Of Violators

WASHINGTON, May 8—President Truman today asked the nation's state and local authorities to pick up drivers' licenses held by "traffic incorrigibles."

Mr. Truman, appearing in person before a highway safety conference, asked nationwide assistance in reducing the steadily mounting traffic death toll.

His address featured the opening session of a three-day conference called by the chief executive to head off the bloodiest year in traffic history.

He urged 2,000 state officials and traffic experts to work out an accident prevention program which can save lives in communities throughout the country.

Aside from the formation of a coordinated national program, the President told the assembled delegates that "the main share of public responsibility" for the reduction of traffic accidents "rests with the state and local agencies of government."

"States and cities," he said, "are responsible for enactment of laws governing the use of motor vehicles on public thoroughfares, and for the enforcement of those laws."

"It is squarely up to them to deal with that small group of traffic incorrigibles who cause so much trouble to so many. After all, the license to drive on the (Continued on Page Two)

U. S. Secretary Proposes June 15 Date For Peace Conference

PARIS, May 8—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes today proposed that the big four foreign ministers mark the anniversary of V-E day by scheduling the peace conference for June 15, but his proposal was blocked by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Byrnes suggested that the full 21-power peace conference be summoned to meet in Paris June 15, remarking that "today is V-E day and I cannot think of any better way of celebrating it than announcing to the world that the peace conference of all the nations will open in Paris June 15."

Molotov objected to an immediate decision on the full-dress conference, pointing out that the drafts of peace treaties with Italy and the Axis satellites have not yet been completed.

Byrnes' proposal was backed by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault.

If accepted by the big four, the Byrnes suggestion would have turned the 21-nation conference into a major peace-making session (Continued on Page Two)

More factories closed, more persons were thrown out of work, more railroads reduced service and more brownouts were imposed today as the coal crisis grew more serious by the hour.

As the coal mine strike began its 38th day, these were the major developments in the coal shortage that has imperiled industry and disrupted the lives of millions:

1. The effects of the coal shortage hit the great Detroit industrial center. The city council passed an ordinance for a drastic power dimout, and the Ford Motor Company announced it will close most of the plants of its far-flung system at midnight tonight. About 110,000 workers will be unemployed.

2. Chicago, hardest hit by the shortage, faced the prospect of a complete blackout, with all business and industry closing down for two weeks. Only essential public services would be left operating if the blackout becomes necessary.

Arabs Plan Appeal To Russians

JERUSALEM, May 8—The Arab higher committee decided today to appeal through the Soviet embassy at Cairo to Premier Stalin for Russian support of Arabic opposition to the Anglo-American recommendations for Palestine.

The higher committee met for four hours today to deliberate what should be done in case the Anglo-American proposal that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine is put into effect.

The committee decided to direct to Stalin through the Cairo embassy a copy of its letter sent earlier to Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee on the subject and appeal to Stalin for help.

The letter to be sent to Stalin committed the Arabs to "oppose by all means" any attempts to carry out the Anglo-American report on Palestine. In it the Arabs said they would defend themselves and organize a "national struggle."

A spokesman for the committee, Dr. Izzat Tannous, said the letter also would be sent to other diplomats. (Continued on Page Two)

BOTH COUNTRIES HEAR FIGHT ON BRITISH, EGYPT

LONDON, May 8—The British government's plan for an Anglo-Egyptian military alliance and gradual withdrawal of British forces from Egypt drew fire today from opposition groups in both countries.

Winston Churchill and the conservative party called the plan a radical and reckless policy endangering the British position in the Middle East. The dissident Wafdist bloc in Egypt attacked the proposal as inadequate and condemned any Egyptian ties with Britain.

The Russian radio publicized the Egyptian opposition by broadcasting a Tass Cairo dispatch quoting one Egyptian paper to the effect that "such an alliance would annul the effect of the evacuation."

Premier Attlee's government won commons approval for its policy last night when Churchill's vote of censure was defeated 327 to 158.

The plan drew official Egyptian approval, too. Foreign Minister Ahmed Lutfi Elsayyid Pasha said in Cairo, "I am pleased with the British evacuation communique, and every Egyptian should be pleased with it."

The Russian radio publicized the Egyptian opposition by broadcasting a Tass Cairo dispatch quoting one Egyptian paper to the effect that "such an alliance would annul the effect of the evacuation."

Premier Attlee's government won commons approval for its policy last night when Churchill's vote of censure was defeated 327 to 158.

The plan drew official Egyptian approval, too. Foreign Minister Ahmed Lufti Elsayyed Pasha said in Cairo, "I am pleased with the British evacuation communique, and every Egyptian should be pleased with it."

Circleville school district voters failed to give the $387,000 school bond issue a large enough vote to approve it at Tuesday's primary election.

Final tabulation of votes by the Pickaway county board of elections showed that the issue failed by 18 votes to get the necessary 65 per cent required for its passage.

Every precinct, except one, gave the proposal a majority, but many failed to give it the necessary 65 per cent. The lone precinct having a majority against was 1-D, which showed a vote of 25 for the bond issue and 31 against.

A total of 1509 votes were cast on the school bond proposal. Final figures showed 963 votes for the issue and 546 against. A total of 981 for was needed to attain the required 65 per cent. The final percentage figures a 84 per cent majority for the issue.

Largest vote was in precinct one of the first ward. There 177 voted for the bond issue and 55 against. Second largest balloting was in 2-A where the residents cast 140 votes for the issue and 71 against.

The school board, in submitting the issue, announced that the revenue from the bonds would be used for improvements in the city school system. School officials stressed as immediate needs an industrial arts building, new physical education facilities and improvements on present buildings.

The board announced that this was part of a long-range improvement program to bring local schools up to standards of other communities. Anticipated in the future is a new elementary building in the north end of the city and a new athletic field.

The voting by precincts:
1-A—for 177, against 55.

DEERCREEK BOND ISSUE CARRIES
BY TWO VOTES

Deercreek township voters approved a $50,000 bond issue for school improvement by the narrow margin of two votes in Tuesday's primary election.

The balloting, as officially tabulated by the board of elections, was 187 for the bond issue and 97 against it.

The total votes cast numbered 284. The necessary 65 per cent was 184 and 60 100 votes.

The bonds are to be retired by a special tax levy outside of the 10-mil limitation, for a maximum period of 15 years. The county auditor has calculated that the special tax levy will be 22 cents for each $100 of property valuation in the township.

WOULD LIFT CONTROLS

WASHINGTON, May 8—Sen. Homer E. Capehart, R., Ind., said today he plans an amendment directing the OPA to life price controls on any commodity when production reaches 150 per cent of the 1940-41 rate. He said the house - approved de-control percentage of 100 per cent of 1940-41 production is not high enough in view of the potential purchasing power of the country.

CIO Loses In Test In Ohio But Has
Chance To Win Alabama Governorship

By United Press
The CIO political action committee, in two major tests at the polls, lost one in Ohio and is in a close contest for the other in Alabama, incomplete returns from yesterday's primaries showed today.

Winner of the Ohio Democratic race for the U. S. senatorial nomination was Sen. James Huffman, who defeated three other aspirants, including Marvin Harrison, Cleveland, backed by the CIO.

In Alabama, J. E. (Big Jim) Folsom, with CIO endorsement, held a slight lead over Lt. Gov.

Handy Ellis, in the five-way race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. A run-off election was certain.

The CIO also was making a bid in the Alabama 5th congressional district where its sponsored candidate, Rep. Albert Rains, was leading former Rep. Joe Starnes by almost 2 to 1. Rains, with CIO support, unseated Starnes two years ago.

In Indiana, nine incumbent Indiana congressmen, eight of them Republicans, appeared to have won renomination.

In the Indiana third district,

State Senator John S. Gonas, South Bend, supported by the CIO, held a slight lead over E. Spencer Walton, for the Democratic nomination.

In Florida, where voters also turned out in light numbers for the Spring primary, Spessard L. Holland easily defeated Rep. Lex Green in the Democratic race for the U. S. senate nomination. Holland, 53, will replace the ailing Sen. Charles O. Andrews, who did not seek renomination.

public highways is a privilege that can be denied if it is abused." The President, openly disturbed at the rising accident death toll, told the conference that while he spoke someone was dying and a score were being injured as a result of traffic accidents.

"This nation cannot afford and will not tolerate this tragic waste of human resources," he said.

The President called for "uniformity in rules of the road" among states as "essential to safe and pleasant highway travel."

"It is not intended that the federal government shall encroach upon the rights and responsibilities of the states," he said.

"At the same time, we cannot expect the congress and the federal government to stand idly by if the toll of disaster remains unchecked. The challenge must and will be met. I firmly hope and believe that every agency of government backed by the aroused support of its citizens, will meet its responsibilities fully in this field."

The President also appealed "to every driver and pedestrian for cooperation in making our streets and highways safer."

"Give to this program," he said, "your earnest and continuous support, individually and through organized effort. In that direction lies the promise of a safer and happier America."

Mrs. Hamilton said that two rods and reels, two fishing tackle boxes, and an electric lantern were missing from the car. Taken to the River road by Chief McCrady, Patrolman Alva Shasteen, and State Highway Patrolman L. G. Ridenour, Phillips disclosed where he and Clinton had hidden the loot in a clump of weeds and the articles, valued at $60, were recovered.

Chief McCrady said that Phillips was committed to the reformatory from Chillicothe for auto theft and that Clinton, a former resident of Miami, Fla., was also committed for auto theft. The police chief disclosed that reformatory officials informed him that Clinton and Phillips were to have been released next August but as a result of their escape they must now remain in the Mansfield institution until 1950.

There is neither resignation nor fatalism in Berlin. Here the pioneer spirit is at work, full of hope for the future. This spirit has been responsible for putting all means of traffic and utility works back into operation. At least the rudimentary daily routine has almost been normalized.

Virtually everywhere in Berlin the water supply is functioning and, although rationed, we have electricity and gas at our disposal. The intra-urban traffic lines such as the stadtahn, subway and street cars have been operating for a long time. Communications are of the greatest importance for such a "widespread" city as Berlin, stretching over an enormous area.

Municipal administration, food distribution and cultural life have recovered surprisingly and quickly. The question of food for Berlin has been a gigantic task. Although our administration tackled the problem vigorously, all our efforts would have been in vain if we had not been assured of the help and support of the allies and some other agencies, especially the Red Cross.

Berlin's intellectual life is a daily expanding. The cosmopolitan spirit of the Berliner cannot stand intellectual standstill nor cultural stagnation. The University of Berlin and the former technical college, now called the technical university, have opened their doors again to the academic youth.

LOCAL OFFICIALS HUNT LEBANON FARM ESCAPEE

Notification of the escape of Harold Luther Young, 24, Route 2, New Holland, from the Lebanon state honor farm, a branch of the London prison farm, May 5, was received Wednesday by Pickaway County Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Police Chief William F. McCrady from Ohio Penitentiary officials.

Young was sentenced to a term of one to 20 years in the penitentiary in December, 1943, in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court for automobile theft following his arrest by Sheriff Radcliff. He had been transferred several months ago to the prison farm.

COAL CRISIS AT HUFFMAN WINS NEW HIGH PEAK OF SERIOUSNESS

delivery of coal to household users who had more than a five-day supply on hand. Exempted from the restrictions were hospitals, public utilities, railroads, food plants and other essential users with less than a 10-day stockpile on hand.

4. The Virginia Electric and Power Company announced it would ration electricity in 63 Virginia counties beginning Tuesday.

5. The government set up an emergency control board charged with the task of keeping the nation's electric power, gas and water systems operating.

6. Both the mine operators and the striking AFL United Mine Workers brushed aside a government proposal for settlement of the prolonged mine walkout.

Ford was the first victim of the coal famine among major automobile makers. M. L. Bricker, vice president in charge of production, said the shutdown was prompted by the railroad tie-up and a shortage of steel and parts as well as a lack of coal. The Chicago brown-out, he said, was affecting more than 40 suppliers of Ford material and parts.

Production men and industrial sources believed Ford's action foreshadowed what will happen when the freight embargo ordered by the office of defense transportation goes into effect Friday. Under the embargo many railroads said their shipments would be cut 75 per cent, except for those on trains powered by diesel engines.

Industry sources said many more plants will be forced to close when the shipments are cut, and not only industry but commerce will suffer one of the greatest blows in the nation's history. The Oliver Farm Equipment Manufacturing company already had announced its intention of closing its seven plants, and officials of Inland Steel Corp. at Chicago said the freight restrictions would force almost a complete shutdown of the company's operations.

The railroads estimated that they would run out of coal in 21 days, but some roads had only enough for eight more days.

Tannous said the higher committee also decided to send Arab delegations to Rome, India and Afghanistan. He said the plans were a prelude "to the use of force."

The short term was created by an Ohio statute which provides that an appointed senator serves only until Dec. 15 and the remaining 19-days of the regular term must be filled by an election. Senator Huffman was appointed junior Ohio senator when Harold Burton resigned to go to the U. S. supreme court.

Three other Republican incumbent state officials—one of whom was unopposed in the GOP primary—were assured nominations after tabulations of votes gave them substantial leads.

Sec. of State Edward Hummel polled almost 60,000 above his nearest opponent and Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins had a lead of 25,000 votes. State treasurer Don H. Ebright was unopposed for re-nomination.

The Paul Herbert—Fred Milligan lieutenant governorship campaign, one of the hottest in either party, provided a surprise to some observers as Herbert counted three votes to one received by Milligan.

Herbert, however, had received the GOP nomination for lieutenant governorship five times and was elected three times while Milligan was making his first election race.

Charles F. Sweeney led a field of six candidates for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state with 73,312. His nearest opponent was state Sen. Frank S. Day, Cleveland candidate with the vote-catching name, who had 35,250. James T. Welsh, former Steubenville mayor, led five candidates for the nomination for state treasurer.

Timothy S. Hogan, Cincinnati attorney, was reported in the lead for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

In the only contest for nomination for a judgeship in the Ohio supreme court, Herbert S. Duffy held a large majority over Charles H. Hubbell for nomination to oppose Republican Judge Charles S. Bell in November.

DOCTORS FLAY TRUMAN HEALTH PLAN AT MEET

Leading Physicians Speak At Annual Session Of Ohio Medical Group

COLUMBUS, O., May 8—Dr. Edward J. McCormick, of Toledo today said the proposed socialization of medicine as outlined in the Truman National Health program and the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill is a threat to American democracy.

Dr. McCormick, chairman of the council on Medical Service and Public Relations of the American Medical Association, spoke on "American Democracy and American Medicine" at the annual sessions of the Ohio State Medical association here.

He said that increasing millions of persons in the United States are insured against the hazards of illness through the Blue Cross plan, industrial plans, private insurance companies and now through voluntary pre-payment sickness insurance plans sponsored by the medical profession.

"American medicine has been and is meeting the challenge," he said. "There is no need for a radical change to political medicine."

Mac F. Cahal, of Chicago, executive secretary of the American College of Radiology, believed that voluntary plans would be sufficient.

"We all hope that voluntary pre-payment plans... will meet the palpable demand of the public for relief from the unpredictable financial burdens of illness," he said.

Dr. Robert F. Parker, Cleveland, reported that the use of penicillin is valuable in virus infections, certain bacterial infections and in many diseases such as cancer, leukemia and rheumatic fever, except as these are complicated by bacterial infection.

Dr. J. Harold Kotte, Cincinnati, said that the use of thioracil has proved effective in the treatment of excess activity of the thyroid gland. In 26 cases the drug proved effective in controlling the symptoms, weight loss, rapid heart action, excessive mobility and tremor and basal metabolic rate in almost all of the patients.

Dr. Frank F. Tallman, state commissioner of mental diseases, said last night that a knowledge of the diagnosis and treatment of personality disorders will be basic to the training of the general practitioner of the future.

"The medical student of the future will devote a great deal of time and study to the characteristics of the total human being and of human behavior," he said. "It looks as though he will have a great deal of competency in fields that now are attributed to the fields of psychiatry, clinical psychology and sociology."

"UNBLOCK" your DIGESTIVE TRACT

And Stop Dosing Your Stomach With Soda and Alkalizers

Don't expect to get real relief from headache, sour stomach, gas and bad breath by taking soda and other alkalizers if the true cause of your trouble is constipation.

In this case, your real trouble is not in the stomach at all. But in the intestinal tract where 80% of your food is digested. And when it gets blocked it fails to digest properly.

What you want for real relief is not soda or an alkalizer—but something to "unblock" your intestinal tract. Something to clean it out effectively—help Nature get back on her feet.

Get Carter's Pills right now. Take them as directed. They gently and effectively "unblock" your digestive tract. This permits your food to move along normally. Nature's own digestive juices can then reach it. You get genuine relief that makes you feel really good again.

Cincinnati Has Won Six Of Last Eight; Frey's Homer Gives Win

NEW YORK, May 8.—The Cincinnati Reds, after a wobbly take-off, were beginning to make their manager, Deacon Bill McKee, look like a first class prophet today.

The Deacon forgot his mild manners at the start of the season when oddsmakers tabbed the Reds as 400 to 1 long shots in the National League race.

"That is ridiculous," he fairly shouted. "We're not a 40 to 1 shot for the pennant and we will not finish last. We're going to be a lot stronger than a lot of people think and if we get any help, we are going to cause plenty of trouble."

The Reds aren't out of the second division woods yet and they may not get out, but right now they are riding high with six victories in eight games, and they are playing a heads-up brand of ball that makes them worth another look, not necessarily as contenders, but certainly as trouble-makers.

Those who doubted the potentialities of the Reds felt they had tabbed them right when they dropped four in a row at the start of the season and five of their first seven games. What they forgot was that the Reds were having a streak of incredibly bad luck, losing tight games for the need of a timely hit or because of a late inning pitching or defensive lapse.

Of the nine games they have dropped to date, six were by a one run margin and the fact remains that they haven't suffered a bad beating yet.

Yesterday, their luck was on the right side, when they topped the Giants, 2 to 1 at Cincinnati for their third straight win. Lonnie Frey's inside-the-park homer that Goodwin Rosen fell down on in fielding gave them the victory margin. Earlier, a wind-blown double by Grady Hatton, followed by another two-base smash by Al Libke gave them their other run. Joe Beggs gained his third victory without defeat, and would have had a shutout but for Johnny Mize's fourth homer.

The Cardinals regained sole tenancy of first place by topping the Braves, 6 to 4, in the season's first night game at St. Louis. Rookie Fred Martin, backed by a five run first inning, won his second game. He is the only Cardinal right hander to start and finish a winning game this season. Stan Musial raised his batting average to .420 with two hits, one a double.

Brooklyn at Pittsburgh and Philadelphia at Chicago in the National were rained out.

The Red Sox stretched their winning streak to 12 games when Leon Culberson's grand slam homer broke up a 14-inning game with the Browns at Boston for a 10 to 6 triumph. Ted Williams, who hit a two run homer, double, and single, set the pace before Culberson's victory smash. Clem Dreisewerd, who kept St. Louis scoreless for the last eight innings, was the winner. However, the Browns got 19 hits off four Boston pitchers. The victory put Boston three and a half games ahead of the Yankees, who didn't play the White Sox at New York because of threatening weather.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout won his 100th major league game for the Tigers at Philadelphia, topping the Athletics, 7 to 2. Hank Greenberg's fourth homer and rookie Anse Moore's three singles paced the Tiger batting attack.

The Senators gained fourth place with a 2 to 1 victory over the Indians at Washington in 10 innings. Al Evans scored the winning run on Stan Spence's long fly. Mickey Haefner held Cleveland to five hits and an unearned run for his first 1946 victory.

CREEL GIVES UP TWO HITS BUT BIRDS LOSE 2-0

By United Press
A few percentage points separated Louisville and St. Paul for first place in the American Association today and Minneapolis dropped to within a half game of the cellar as its third manager in four days took the helm.

Louisville held the top spot by defeating last-place Kansas City 5-2 yesterday and St. Paul kept pace by edging Columbus 2-0 in a night contest abbreviated to eight innings because of necessity to catch a train. Toledo outslugged Minneapolis 7-6 and Indianapolis shaded Milwaukee 3-2.

Ed Weiland pitched shutout ball for the Saints at St. Paul and was well-matched by the Red Birds' Jack Creel who did not weaken until the 8th and final inning of the shortened contest. Weiland scattered three hits over the route and the best the Saints could do off Creel were two bingles but they counted for as many runs for the ball game.

The return of "Long" Tom Sheehan as manager of the Millers was not enough to keep Toledo from dropping them again in a free-scoring game at Minneapolis. Sheehan managed the Millers from 1939 to 1943 and since leaving Minneapolis, had been coach for the National League Boston Braves. He replaced Rosy Ryan who left his "front" office job to take over after the unconditional release of Zeke Bonura. Ryan returns to his former job and Bonura temporarily is staying with the team as scout.

ALLOCATION TO UNRRA IS SHORT OF HIGH GOAL

Anderson Pessimistic About Chances Of U. S. Meeting Wheat Export Quota

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The destitute and hungry peoples of the world must skimp along for at least another month with even less food than they had expected. Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson disclosed at a news conference yesterday that UNRRA would get only 491,000 tons of grain for world relief feeding in May. UNRRA Director Fiorenzo H. LaGuardia had requested 700,000 tons.

LaGuardia said he could not "kick" on the allocation in view of grants to other claimants. But he said the cut would mean that the available bread would "have to be sliced thinner."

It was believed the new allocation to UNRRA was somewhat higher than the board originally intended. UNRRA received only 350,000 tons of cereals in April. Anderson also was pessimistic for the first time over this country's chances of meeting its wheat export goal of 6,000,000 tons for the first six months of this year. An agriculture department showed U. S. exports were lagging 881,000 tons through the first week in May.

Anderson said the report was "somewhat discouraging and indicates it will be extremely difficult to meet our goals." The report means that the United States must export 2,881,000 tons of grains in the next seven weeks to meet its promises.

Anderson's statement came in the face of an agriculture department warning that the current famine is the worst since Genghis Khan swept across Asia and Europe in the 13th century.

"Even with large shipments of grain and other foods from countries having surpluses, a half billion people face increasingly serious food shortages at least till this year's crops are harvested," it said.

Anderson said it would be impossible, however, to send the hungry peoples even though food to meet their minimum needs. The plight of India and China is particularly desperate, he said, because of the tremendous distances relief foods must be shipped.

He said the food board had allocated only 265,000 tons of grain to India in May although Sir Shankar Bagpai, Indian agent general, had told the board India must import 879,000 tons of cereals a month to maintain a bread ration of only 9.6 ounces a day.

Anderson's pessimism over American grain exports contrasted sharply with his earlier mood of optimism. He told a news conference only Monday that he still believed this country would meet its goals.

The report showed that the U. S. sent only 582,000 tons of grain abroad in April in the face of an original goal of 1,000,000 tons and a deficit of 313,000 tons. In addition, shipments during the first week in May were short 150,000 tons.

SEES BIG OFFICER RESERVE
DENVER.—Col. T. A. Pedley, Jr., official of the fourth military area, predicted here recently that the Army's officer reserve corps soon will be four times as large as before the war.

He said there were 800,000 reserve officers in the Army when the war ended. The peacetime officer reserve, under present Army plans, will comprise an "active" reserve of completely manned units and skeleton units, and an "inactive" reserve of officers not eligible for the active category but whose energies and experience are desired for emergency positions, Pedley said.

Battle On Street Lights Rages At Council Session

NEW RESOLUTION ON LIGHTING IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Councilmen Order Survey Of Sewer Needs; Reports Heard At Meeting

A wrangle developed among members of the city council at Tuesday night's regular session over a resolution passed at the April 16 meeting authorizing installation of additional street lights in the fourth and second wards.

Councilmen Ray Cook and Ray Anderson, sponsors of the resolution, declared that City Service Director Clarence Helvering had not asked the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company to make the installations. Councilman Cook asserted hotly that he and Councilman Anderson were tired of "being pushed around."

Director Helvering arose and declared that he had not issued the order to the power company because the resolution had not been certified to him in the proper manner as required by law.

Participants in the ensuing oral barrage included Councilmen Cook, Anderson, Boyd Horn, J. D. Mason and George L. Crites. Councilman Crites endeavored to pour oil on the troubled waters.

The squabble ended when Councilman Mason offered an amendment to the resolution rescinding the re-location of the light at Main and Franklin streets. The amendment passed by unanimous vote. The original resolution authorized the installation of nine new lights of 100 and 250-candle power.

Council also passed a motion, offered by Councilman Crites, to order Director Helvering to employ an engineer to make a survey and to prepare plans and draft specifications and estimated costs for the installation of several storm and sanitary sewers that have been applied for, and for potential applications from property owners in Crist addition, Collins court, Highland avenue, Logan street, Spring Hollow, Clinton street, and Town street.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon filed with the council a report for April listing fines $94.50, licenses $17, bonds $134, total $245.50. The report, which was unanimously approved by council, said that $9.50 of the fines may be used for street repairs only.

Report of council's finance committee covering the month of April was submitted by Councilman Crites as chairman and it was approved. The report listed: general fund, receipts $4,472.71, expenditures $6,563, balance $9,385.12; sewage disposal fund, receipts $3,262.56, expenditures, $1,206.69, balance $7,648; library fund, receipts $41.64, expenditures $846.14, balance $3,369.51; street repair fund, receipts $72.50, expenditures $2,318.67, balance $1,694.37; gasoline tax fund, expenditures $1,089.01, balance $1,878.53; Berger hospital fund, receipts $2,548.82, expenditures $3,514.76; balance $3,252.52.

April report of Berger hospital, submitted to council by Safety Director Thurman I. Miller, was approved. The report listed salaries $2,071.56, provisions $416.65, laundry $340.70, light $57, medical $117.68, surgical $102.11, other expense $85.76, total expenses $3,191.46. Collections totaled $2,532.31, plus rent of nurses' quarters $60, total collections $2,592.31.

Where Shall I Put the Milk House

One of the new farm buildings which is today appearing most frequently on the farmstead horizon is the milk house. This is a healthy situation and speaks well for our attempt to produce finer milk on our dairy farms. It is entirely fitting that we should have on our dairy farms one building which is used entirely for the proper handling of our number one food, milk, and the utensils which are used in connection with this product. We feel justified in having a special building for our grains, our poultry, our machinery, etc., so why shouldn't we have this special building for handling our principal source of income.

In many instances, however, it appears questionable that we have located this all-important building, the milk house, most wisely. There are several factors to consider in locating this building. Let's briefly analyze these and fit them to our own farmstead situation.

1. Convenience

Where properly used, the milk house should be convenient. Probably the first consideration is the barn and milking herd. Our statute books contain a law which states that each cow's milk should be strained and cooled immediately in the milk house after being drawn. If this were to be enforced, and it may be some time in the future, then we must get that milk house as near to the source of supply as possible. A little simple arithmetic would show that a 20-cow herd producing about 30 lbs. milk each per day, would require that over 90 tons of milk be moved from the barn to the milk house every year, not including the movement of equipment, water, etc.

Convenience to the house is also a consideration. Many times the utensils are washed by the women folks and this means many trips to and from the house. By locating it between the house and barn many steps can be saved.

Most plans today suggest locations adjacent to the barn, connected by a good concrete walk and if possible an overhead shelter. Can-hauling carts are becoming popular and this arrangement lends itself to this practice.

2. Free of Barn Odors

This milk house should never be in or open directly into the barn so that barn odors can enter. This can be prevented by a passageway separating the two, with two separate doors, one in the barn and one in the milk house. Where possible, one door is all that should be built in the milk house. This allows more wall space for the equipment needed within.

3. Clean Surroundings

Where at all possible, some consideration should be given to surroundings. Find a well-drained spot away from the barnyard and if possible surrounded by grass instead of the usual dusty yard. One of the problems is often that of dust in the milk house. By avoiding these dusty areas around the barn, it simplifies the problem of dust which blows in and dirt which tracks in. Where possible it is advisable to avoid locating the milk house in close proximity to the hog house and hog yard. Odors again are often objectionable in this case.

4. Water Supply

Many times our dairymen have felt that the milk house should or must be located over the well. This is usually a mistake if the well is not in a satisfactory location for the milk house. Water can very easily be piped to this building in most cases, while the milk supply cannot.

Where possible, all factors should be taken into consideration in locating this all important building. However, if any one is most important, that of convenience should probably head the list.

Let's plan carefully before building a milk house.

LABOR RIGHTS

THE right to strike is such a vital and important right that for the sake of the general welfare it should not be abused, but should be appealed to only in extreme cases, for the preservation of essentials.

Have these principles been applied in the case of the present coal strike? From general observation it seems likely that most citizens will say no. And by the same token most citizens will approve arbitration, at the hands of trusted experts, to determine what is right and fair in wages, hours, and so on. This is the "American way," which unfortunately seems to be unduly neglected of late in the handling of some of our important public problems.

It is obvious, too, that in any adjudication, or any plans for such procedure, the public itself should have a seat at the table. For the general interest is always involved, directly or indirectly.

These are old problems, for which the principles and procedures should have been worked out long ago. In the mass, we seem strangely slow and hesitant in our economic processes.

BASEBALL UNION

IF the new baseball players' union really gets going, it will make some difference in the game. An avowed object is to give the players some say when it is proposed to transfer him to another club. Suppose he objects to any transfer except to a wealthy club which pays higher salaries than the rest? That would soon end in one or two clubs monopolizing the best talent. Things are near enough to that now in the American League, with the New York Yankees on top almost every year, without making it any worse.

Unions tend to favor equal pay for workmen engaged on the same job. Will they demand that Tommy Holmes or Joe DiMaggio be cut down to lesser players' salaries, or are all to rank with these top-notchers?

And will the closed shop be enforced? Will union players refuse to play with or against non-union men?

Baseball fans would like to know the answers.

At first it was the United Nations Organization, commonly written UNO. Then it became UN. If a world government is ever established, probably it will be reduced to just U.

"After Spain, What?" asks a writer. Maybe new respect for old-fashioned elections.

Back Of The Headlines...By Louis F. Keemle

The upshot of the French vote on a new constitution is that France maintains its trend toward the political left but that the growing ambitions of the Communists have been rebuked clearly.

The electorate turned down a revolutionary constitution which was most ardently supported by the Communists, but with only modified enthusiasm by the Socialists. The other party in the three way government, the Liberal-Catholic Popular Republicans (MRP), strongly opposed it. So did the Rightists.

It cannot be considered a Rightist victory, however, except that they played a part in deciding a single issue, admittedly an important one.

The trend of French political opinion toward the revolutionary ideas of 1875, when the third republic was established, or even of 1789, the year when the people took over, has not been altered importantly by the "yes or no" referendum on a proposed constitution. It is just that there is enough bourgeois, conservative sentiment left in France to go slow in adopting a fundamental law which they were convinced, rightly or wrongly, was more Bolshevik - inspired than French.

One of the most interesting points of the draft constitution just rejected was its preamble, called "the rights of man." It embodied the main points of the similar declaration of 1789 and met generally with French approval, except for some specific modern additions, such as a hint of state control or communization of private property where the "social good" might be affected.

The point that really defeated the constitution was the provision for a one-chamber parliament, abolishing the senate. The power of the president would have been made purely nominal, with both executive and judicial functions subject to the majority in the single chamber. Social and economic jurisdiction would similarly have been limited.

It was pointed out to the electorate that a single party—notably the Communists—might thus establish a dictatorship. Such a regime would not be subject to the checks and balances of the two houses of congress, the executive and the judiciary which prevail in the United States, and are practised by unwritten law in Great Britain.

Having turned thumbs down on these innovations, the French are now confronted with another period of interim government for seven months. A new constituent assembly will be elected on June 2, with a mandate to prepare a more acceptable constitution by early in 1947.

France thus will continue to be handicapped in her foreign relations for the remainder of this year because there will be no stable government which can commit the nation to a permanent policy. It is bound to lead, as in recent months, to reluctance by the other powers to accept any French undertakings as final.

On the other hand, the election result should strengthen the hand of Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, assuming that he and his MRP remain a part of the government. Bidault has differed openly with premier Felix Gouin on policy, including Bidault's insistence on separation of the Ruhr and Rhineland from Germany. Back of Bidault was the shadowy figure of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, who withdrew from the present political mess but is still a powerful figure and cannot be considered to have retired permanently from the arena.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON May 8—The Senate debate on the proposed loan to Britain has conspicuously ducked the fact that the British government is lavishly buying its way into socialism. Some of the senate news-men, who are the senators severest critics, attribute the void to the broad lack of knowledge among politicians of financial matters. They should charge it, instead, to the masking operations of the Attlee government. Not even the most learned financial authorities of the empire can ascertain how the Attlee treasury has taken over the bank of England and the mines, or how it is proceeding now to take the cable and wireless companies, railroads, steel and whatnot. The operations have been covered with secrecy and confusion worthy of an Eisenhower invasion of Europe, in which false moves and rumors were used to conceal the real intent from the enemy.

Yet sufficient general evidence is available in the government bills proposed in parliament to piece together a general outline of the scheme. Each industry is being seized in a slightly different way. The government has steadfastly refused to announce a general policy. But the actions taken so far warrant the following conclusions:

The government is buying its nation with debt. It is purchasing industries by offering government stock or securities to private owners for their private stock and securities. The price paid is rarely divulged, but seems generally to be the current market value, or better.

The London Times (April 29) analyzed the processes so far in an effort to offer some worthwhile advice to holders of railroad securities who may be next, and reached this conclusion: "whatever method of nationalization is adopted, railroad stocks should be retained." In short, the times concludes the government will offer at least the current market value or better for the railroads.

Only in the taking of the Bank of England did the government tell what it was really offering. Then it gave a 3 per cent government bond for stock, but guaranteed dividends until 1966 equal to what the bank had paid in the past 20 years. In the seizure of the coal industry alone did the treasury permit free sale of its substitute stock (there is a big debt in coal and operations have not been profitable.) So the general conclusion is inescapable that the socialism of Britain represents the government issuing stock to the same people who held the private stock, at market prices, often promising them the same dividends, and in effect guaranteeing them against losses, while depriving them of influence in operations or the right to sell their stock.

This is an expensive operation, in effect, it transfers the debts of industry from private ownership to the people as a whole, making the treasury liable for success of the enterprises, atop all the war debts.

How will it work out? Not a man alive can guess, offhand you might reasonably conclude that if the industrial operations continue profitable, the government may pay off in 20 to 25 years as contemplated. If business becomes unprofitable, the people in their taxes, will have to foot the

There was the bidding of this deal at two tables of a duplicate. South at Table 1 used 2-No Trumps to show his strength because, in his method, a force with a suit, such as 2-Spades, would indicate a suit of at least five cards. Notice how it then became impossible for him to show both of his suits later—having lost his first chance to show one—without getting above the No Trump game level.

At the other table, South's showing of spades on his first turn put him in position to show his hearts at the three level—below a No Trump game—so that his partner could have stuck the contract into No Trumps if he held less than four hearts. Having four of them, he properly took it to a game in hearts.

The 3-No Trumps could not be made against club leads. The Q was opened to the A, and the heart A driven out. South held up on the club return and took the third club lead with his K. He scored three hearts, then finessed diamonds to the K, whereupon two more clubs set him.

In a heart game, South at Table 2 made his airtight contract plus an extra trick, losing only one trick in hearts and one in diamonds—a proper reward for sound bidding.

Pneumonia a Triple Threat To Lungs and Other Organs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PNEUMONIA is a triple-threat disease.

It not only endangers life by a direct assault on the lungs, but it can at the same time carry out a kind of sneak attack on nearly any other organ of the body. Doctors call these secondary effects of disease "complications" and in pneumonia they are many and varied.

For example, there is a skin rash which often occurs about the lips known as herpes labialis or there may be a rash of the skin due to the profuse perspiration that often occurs during pneumonia.

Drug Complications

Then, too, there are complications which may develop, due to the use of the sulfonamide drugs or anti-pneumococcal serum. In more severe pneumonia, abscesses of the skin sometimes develop. The gastro-intestinal organs are also affected in many ways, in pneumonia. Sickness to the stomach, vomiting and loss of appetite are not uncommon symptoms.

Occasionally, inflammation of the parotid glands, which form saliva, occurs. Dilatation or stretching of the stomach occurs now and then. A paralysis of the bowel known as ileus has been seen in the more severe infections.

There are even more dangerous complications known as pneumococcal peritonitis or inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdominal cavity which may develop from time to time. Sometimes pneumonia patients develop jaundice or a greenish-yellow discoloration of the skin due to inflammation of the liver.

In such cases a liver-protective diet rich in starches and sugars, and in protein foods such as meat and eggs, but low in fat, is employed.

Amino Acids

In addition, it is suggested by Dr. John Francis Briggs of St. Paul that amino acids be given. These are the substances from which proteins are made. Injections of insulin, as well as vitamins, such as B, and C, may also aid in the recovery of the patient.

Complications affecting the bones and joints are rather unusual in pneumonia. However, arthritis or inflammation of the joints may occasionally follow pneumonia and the severe attacks of coughing have been known to produce rib fractures. Inflammation of the bladder as well as inflammation of the kidneys develops now and then, following long infections.

On the other hand, the nervous system is frequently affected. During the severe stages of the infection, the patient may have mental disturbances and may even become unconscious. Meningitis or inflammation of the lining membrane over the brain as well as encephalitis or inflammation of the brain itself may also occur.

Because of the treacherous nature of pneumonia, it is easy to see the positive need for prompt and adequate treatment. It is a disease with which nobody can afford to take chances, especially when sulfonamide drugs and penicillin offer doctor and patient such wonderful weapons for quick counter-attack and final KO.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE
PRESENTLY, while I was eating my long delayed breakfast, at Rosa's almost tearful insistence and with a total lack of appetite, Inspector Barry arrived, followed a few minutes later by Dr. Rosen, who beamed at me over his rimless glasses, announced he'd come to preserve the nervous system of a valuable witness, and prescribed 24 hours in bed at the least, as a remedy.

I felt so tired and all in spite of my long, dragged sleep that I agreed readily to the little doctor's suggestion. Especially when Inspector Barry assured me that everything had been arranged for Brenda's funeral—the following Monday, to make sure Leighton would be there—and that I couldn't see her body at the funeral parlor, no matter how often I went there.

I even submitted to having a nurse, who was to spend the night in my guest room.

I knew I wasn't ill and didn't need one. But, to be guarded from all outside interference for 24 hours in bed did sound good to me after the last two weeks. And so I relaxed gratefully in my pillows after my visitors, including Claire, had left, pleasantly aware of the protective nearness of the smiling, robust-looking nurse who'd materialized as if by magic.

Toward dinner time Dita rung up.

She sounded gay and animated, wanted to know why I hadn't called her to report my reaction to Neal's performance and great success, and asked if I were coming out for the week-end.

Her cheerfulness showed that Dick hadn't told her of our new tragedy, and she'd overlooked the small notice in the papers about Brenda's "suicide." But she did know, vaguely, of some trouble between Neal and me, and scared me out of my wits by suggesting she'd give Neal a good lecture about it over the phone.

"Dick has tried all day long to reach her for me, but she's always out," she complained.

I had an idea that Dick had managed NOT to get Neal on the phone, or had reached her and made her promise to keep quiet about Brenda's death and the nature of our quarrel. But, just to make sure, I begged Dita: "Don't, pet. Let it lie! It's only a small misunderstanding and—you know Neal. If you talk a lot of a thing it looks more important to her."

Dita saw the sense of the statement and agreed, reluctantly, to leave Neal alone. But I had to lie myself out of an immediate trip to Elmpoint.

"No, I'm not coming out this week-end, on account of, I have the sniffles," I extemporized in answer to her entreaties. "Your father-in-law would scalp me if I gave them to you. No, honestly, I'm not ill. It's just the sniffles. Sure I'll come out for a real stay, as soon as my nose behaves itself again. It's a promise."

Nothing else happened that day.

Friday was a wonderful respite, too, and anything but lonely.

Dr. Rosen came before noon, felt my pulse, listened to my heart and ordered his medicine discontinued. Inspector Barry looked in several times. Tonic sent flowers—he also asked to see me and was told he couldn't. I discovered later, Hunt actually wired roses and Claire was in and out constantly, with and without reports from the office.

The climax of the day, however, came late in the afternoon, when Neal's Jones presented herself, in hat and coat and looking the typical English lady's maid, to bring me a letter from her mistress.

"I also wish to say goodbye, if I may, and hope you will soon be well again, Miss Applebee," she announced primly, with an expression that said something entirely different.

Then she bobbed me a curtsy and marched out. And I lay turning the letter around in my hand, afraid of the black-on-white fury it was sure to contain, and wondering why Neal bothered to put her anger in writing, instead of just walking out.

But when after a while I opened it—mainly at the prodding of Claire, who had just arrived to have dinner with me—I had the surprise of my life.

The letter was short. It really wasn't much more than a note. And it read:

Jane dear: I've been a big pig, but I promise I shall only be a little pig from now on, so please forgive me! Also, forgive my moving out. I'm doing it, not because you slapped my face—which I had coming to me—but because of certain new plans I have. Besides, to be honest, my room gives me the creeps. I wake up nights, fancying the dead Ingalls woman is really lying on the floor in front of my bed. The creeps extend to the furniture, too. So I'm leaving it to your hands. Keep it or sell it or give it back to Dita or burn it if you like. But, whatever you do, please don't stay mad with me! Affectionately, NEAL

P. S. I'm moving to the Tri-annon on Sixtieth.

I read the letter through twice, to make sure I hadn't overlooked a hidden joke in it. Then I handed it to Claire, wordlessly.

She also read it twice, her eyes popping, before she gave it back to me. With a one-word comment into which she put a world of expression.

"Well!" she said. And again, "Well!"

The following morning Claire sailed in with the news that the nurse had left.

"This being Saturday, Inspector Barry suggested I come to the office and take her place till he comes," she explained her early appearance. "Also, he wants me to sleep here again until further notice. Boy!

Conservation League Officers Are Installed

Delinquency Topic Of Miss Taylor At Meeting

Mrs. Luther Bower was installed as president of the Child Conservation League at a tea given by the executive board of the club at the home of Mrs. Lemuel Weidon, retiring president, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Duvall assumed the duties of the vice president, Mrs. J. I. Smith Jr. is the new secretary and Mrs. Frank Sosa, the treasurer.

Lovely spring flowers added color and charm to the setting for the officer's installation. A short business meeting preceded the program. Committees were appointed and Mrs. Norbert Cochran, program chairman, presented a short resume of the program for the ensuing year.

The speaker, Miss Genevieve Taylor from the Court of Domestic Relations, Columbus, was presented by Mrs. Howard Stevenson, the retiring program chairman. Miss Taylor received her Bachelor of Science degree at Ohio State university, her law degree at Franklin university and her masters degree from Ohio State where she majored in social welfare and psychology.

Miss Taylor's work deals with juvenile delinquents, the subject of her talk. She mentioned a foreign correspondent who stated, "Children in America are the most blessed in all the world." Miss Taylor said that this statement is not true of three or four hundred thousand children brought into the juvenile courts of our country each year. Of these 250,000 are delinquent and the others are dependent or neglected children.

She said "We know that delinquency is a symptom. The first thing a judge wants to know when a child is brought into a court for stealing or other offenses is 'why?' Among the many theories about the cause of delinquency are low mentality, personality defects, or a feeling of inferiority, a desire for companionship, and emotional disturbances. The courts have been able to help many, many cases. But every judge has learned that delinquent children have needed help long before they reached court.

Their parents and community have failed them. Many young people are suffering from personality sickness and too indifferent an attitude on the part of adults. "Remedies for delinquency can be found in youth programs in churches, recreational facilities, teen age canteens and good musical programs to cite a few of the worthy youth movements."

Miss Taylor stated that adults are failing youth in several ways. Ethically they have failed their children by "chipping off" the law a bit and then are surprised when their youngsters break the law. They have failed youth morally. Dr. Burkhardt has said, "I am not so much concerned with the low standards of youth as I am with the low standards of adults." She said "adults have removed so many of the old restraints and are failing youth spiritually. Some are too lazy to make a home life interesting. It takes energy to do this." Dorothy Thompson has said, "It is not a question of what your children hear; but what they don't hear."

Miss Taylor stressed the importance of community responsibility for the environment in which children find themselves today. The picture of Utopia, she painted, for the future included many gleaming churches crowded with people, playgrounds for every child, medical clinics for rich and poor, music free to all, block upon block where no saloon is found, free entertainment for young and old, sympathetic teacher who love children and good, clean homes where peace prevails.

Mrs. John Taylor, mother of the speaker and Mrs. William Licht Jr., Cincinnati, were out of town guests at the tea.

Battle On Street Lights Rages At Council Session

NEW RESOLUTION ON LIGHTING IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Councilmen Order Survey of Sewer Needs; Reports Heard At Meeting

A wrangle developed among members of the city council at Tuesday night's regular session over a resolution passed at the April 16 meeting authorizing installation of additional street lights in the fourth and second wards.

Councilmen Ray Cook and Ray Anderson, sponsors of the resolution, declared that City Service Director Clarence Helvering had not asked the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company to make the installations. Councilman Cook asserted hotly that he and Councilman Anderson were tired of "being pushed around."

Director Helvering arose and declared that he had not issued the order to the power company because the resolution had not been certified to him in the proper manner as required by law.

Participants in the ensuing oral barrage included Councilmen Cook, Anderson, Boyd Horn, J. D. Mason and George L. Crites. Councilman Crites endeavored to pour oil on the troubled waters.

The squabble ended when Councilman Mason offered an amendment to the resolution rescinding the re-location of the light at Main and Franklin streets. The amendment passed by unanimous vote. The original resolution authorized the installation of nine new lights of 100 and 250-candle power.

Council also passed a motion, offered by Councilman Crites, to order Director Helvering to employ an engineer to make a survey and to prepare plans and draft specifications and estimated costs for the installation of several storm and sanitary sewers that have been applied for, and for potential applications from property owners in Crist addition, Collins court, Highland avenue, Logan street, Spring Hollow, Clinton street, and Town street.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon filed with the council a report for April listing fines $94.50, licenses $17, bonds $134, total $245.50. The report, which was unanimously approved by council, said that $9.50 of the fines may be used for street repairs only.

Report of council's finance committee covering the month of April was submitted by Councilman Crites as chairman and it was approved. The report listed: general fund, receipts $4,472.71, expenditures $6,563, balance $9,365.12; sewage disposal fund, receipts $3,262.56, expenditures, $1,206.69, balance $7,648; library fund, receipts $41.64, expenditures $846.14, balance $3,369.51; street repair fund, receipts $72.50, expenditures $2,318.67, balance $1,694.37; gasoline tax fund, expenditures $1,089.01, balance $1,878.53; Berger hospital fund, receipts $2,548.82, expenditures $3,514.76; balance $3,252.52.

April report of Berger hospital, submitted to council by Safety Director Thurman I. Miller, was approved. The report listed salaries $2,071.56, provisions $416.65, laundry $340.70, light $57, medical $117.68, surgical $102.11, other expense $85.76, total expenses $3,191.46. Collections totaled $2,532.31, plus rent of nurses' quarters $60, total collections $2,592.31.

Where Shall I Put the Milk House

One of the new farm buildings which is today appearing most frequently on the farmstead horizon is the milk house. This is a healthy situation and speaks well for our attempt to produce finer milk on our dairy farms. It is entirely fitting that we should have on our dairy farms one building which is used entirely for the proper handling of our number one food, milk, and the utensils which are used in connection with this product. We feel justified in having a special building for our grains, our poultry, our machinery, etc., so why shouldn't we have this special building for handling our principal source of income.

In many instances, however, it appears questionable that we have located this all-important building, the milk house, most wisely. There are several factors to consider in locating this building. Let's briefly analyze these and fit them to our own farmstead situation.

- 1. Convenience
Where properly used, the milk house should be convenient. Probably the first consideration is the barn and milking herd. Our statute books contain a law which states that each cow's milk should be strained and cooled immediately in the milk house after being drawn. If this were to be enforced, and it may be some time in the future, then we must get that milk house as near to the source of supply as possible. A little simple arithmetic would show that a 20-cow herd producing about 30 lbs. milk each per day, would require that over 90 tons of milk be moved from the barn to the milk house every year, not including the movement of equipment, water, etc.
- 2. Free of Barn Odors
This milk house should never be in or open directly into the barn so that barn odors can enter. This can be prevented by a passageway separating the two, with two separate doors, one in the barn and one in the milk house. Where possible, one door is all that should be built in the milk house. This allows more wall space for the equipment needed within.
- 3. Clean Surroundings
Where at all possible, some consideration should be given to surroundings. Find a well-drained spot away from the barnyard and if possible surrounded by grass instead of the usual dusty yard. One of the problems is often that of dust in the milk house. By avoiding these dusty areas around the barn, it simplifies the problem of dust which blows in and dirt which tracks in. Where possible it is advisable to avoid locating the milk house in close proximity to the hog house and hog yard. Odors again are often objectionable in this case.
- 4. Water Supply
Many times our dairymen have felt that the milk house should or must be located over the well. This is usually a mistake if the well is not in a satisfactory location for the milk house. Water can very easily be piped to this building in most cases, while the milk supply cannot.

Where possible, all factors should be taken into consideration in locating this all important building. However, if any one is most important, that of convenience should probably head the list.

Let's plan carefully before building a milk house.
